Culture Fest 2008 Promotes Awareness and Unity through Interactive Workshops, Performances and Ethnic Food Free festival at Texas A&M University-Corpus Christi is open to the community

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas – Eight diverse cultures will be celebrated during Culture Fest 2008 Saturday, Nov. 15, from 4-7 p.m. throughout the University Center at Texas A&M University-Corpus Christi. The event is free and open to the public.

This year's festival, presented by the Islander Cultural Alliance (ICA) and affiliate organizations, is themed "One World, One Mission, to Promote Unity."

Students and community members will promote the need for more cultural awareness through interactive workshops and displays, music, ethnic food and performances. Participating organizations include the African American Student Association, the Muslim Student Association, the India Student Association, the Chinese Student Association and others. The more than 9,000 students attending Texas A&M-Corpus Christi represent 48 states and 67 foreign countries.

ICA builds cultural bridges between campus groups and the greater community through multicultural programming. For more information, call the Islander Cultural Alliance at 361.825.2539.
