Texas A&M-Corpus Christi Notifies NCAA of Appeal Plans

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas -- Texas A&M University-Corpus Christi has sent notification to the NCAA Infractions Appeal Committee that it will appeal the decisions made by the Committee on Infractions in the following three areas: men's tennis scholarship reduction; men's tennis post-season ban; and the women's volleyball scholarship reduction.

Texas A&M-Corpus Christi is awaiting confirmation that the notification has been received at NCAA offices. Once receipt is confirmed the University has 30 days to submit the written appeal. Officials state that they will be working on the language for the written appeal over the next several days.

The NCAA released its decision March 26 following an investigation into rules infractions and others issues in the intercollegiate athletics program at the University.
