Texas A&M University-Corpus Christi Celebrates the Life and Dream of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. with a Campus March

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas – The African American Cultural Society and the Islander Cultural Alliance at Texas A&M University-Corpus Christi will hold a campus march Tuesday, Jan. 20, commemorating the life of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. and his fight for racial equality.

The theme of this year's event is "Are You Living the Dream?" The march, which begins at 11 a.m. outside the east entrance of the University Center, will be led by the Corpus Christi Ray High School's NJROTC.

Following the march, a video of President Barack Obama's inauguration will be shown in the University Center, Lone Star Ballroom. The event is free and open to the public.
