Texas A&M-Corpus Christi Names Colby Stoever
New Director of Planning & Institutional Research

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas – Dr. Colby Stoever of the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board (THECB) has been named the new Director of Planning and Institutional Research at Texas A&M University-Corpus Christi.

Stoever, who worked on a number of statewide higher education projects as a senior research specialist at THECB, joins the University August 1. While at the THECB, he was involved in the Pathways project to improve curriculum alignment between high school and post-secondary institutions and developmental education. Stoever also has extensive work in making higher education data available and useable.

“We’re pleased that Dr. Stoever has chosen to become part of the Islander family,” said Vice Provost Paul Meyer. “He brings a wealth of knowledge and expertise related to student retention and success and to making institutional data accessible to users. We look forward to putting him to work.”

Stoever earned a bachelor’s degree in psychology and communication at the University of Texas at Austin. He earned his master’s degree and doctorate in experimental psychology at the University of Texas at El Paso.

Stoever takes over for Dr. Paul Orser, associate vice president for planning and institutional effectiveness, who retires August 31 after serving 37 years at Texas A&M-Corpus Christi. The operation will move into the Division of Academic Affairs at the University.
