FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
DATE: October 18, 2011
CONTACT: Alison Frost, 361.825.2500; Cassandra Hinojosa, 361.825.2337
High Resolution Photo: Camp Danger

Camp Danger Improv Troupe to Compete for National Title After Taking First Place in Southwest Regional Competition

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas – The Camp Danger Improv Troupe at Texas A&M University-Corpus Christi took first place in the Southwest Regional Competition of the College Improv Tournament held Oct. 15 in Austin, Texas, and will compete for the national title in March 2012.

The tournament, sponsored by the Chicago Improv Festival, featured improv troupes from Texas A&M-Corpus Christi, the University of Texas, Texas Christian University, Texas Tech University, Rice University, Northwestern State University, the University of North Texas, and the University of Houston.

As the top college improv team in Texas, Camp Danger received a plaque and will compete at the national College Improv Tournament on March 10, 2012, in Chicago, Ill. Members of Camp Danger are theatre majors Ellen Buschang, Andrew Robinson, Esteban Reyna, Travis Delgado, and communication major Dillon Dinkens.

-A&M-Corpus Christi-