13.02.99.C0.05 Students' Role in Institutional Decision Making

Revised: September 30, 2024
Next Scheduled Review: September 30, 2029
Revision History

Procedure Summary

Texas A&M University-Corpus Christi (TAMU-CC) values its students and has several ways for them to assist in the university's decision making. This procedure outlines the primary ways for students to engage in this activity.

Procedure

1. Students provide input into the decision-making process through the Student Government Association, Strategic Planning Council, Student Fee Advisory Committee, and Chancellor's Student Advisory Council of The Texas A&M University System. Various advisory bodies and committees, which include students, are formed to address specific issues. A complete list of university committees, councils, and other advisory bodies can be found on the university's committees & councils webpage. Students may request to be appointed to serve on advisory groups and committees. Appointments to advisory groups and committees are made by various members of the university community. In addition, TAMU-CC encourages those students not serving on these formal bodies to express their ideas and suggestions to the Student Government Association so that they may be considered in the making of policy decisions.

2. Students are encouraged to become a part of the decision-making process by participating in the Student Government Association or making university personnel aware of their desire to serve on a committee or advisory board. The Student Government Association is composed of an elected student body president and vice president and elected senators. The Chancellor's Student Advisory Council of The Texas A&M University System has two (2) representatives from TAMU-CC: the student body president or designee and a member elected by the Student Government Association.

3. The student body president serves on the Strategic Planning Council, which is composed of administrative officers, directors, and other members of the university community. This council is charged by the President to oversee the university strategic planning process, including review/revision of metrics, review of progress made on the current strategic plan, and development of the next strategic plan.

4. In effect, the university operates under an open-door policy with regard to student input in institutional decision making. However, to determine the specific office to which student input should be directed, students are encouraged to contact the Office of Student Engagement and Success for assistance.

Related Statutes, Policies, or Requirements

System Policy 13.02, Student Rights and Obligations

This procedure supersedes:

- 13.99.99.C1, Students' Role and Participation in Institutional Decision Making

Contact Office

Contact for clarification and interpretation:	Vice President for Student Engagement and Success and Intercollegiate Athletics 361.825.3404