Experimental Psychology: Do Adolescent Mothers Finish High School?

Feb.- May 20xx

- Collaborated with 4 team members on a quantitative research project
- Surveyed 10 students (ages 16 – 18) who were adolescent mothers re: high school, childcare, homework, social activity participation, and keeping a relationship with birth fathers
- Discovered that 9 out of 10 finished regular high school, and 1 finished by GED
- Subjects reported that, with support of family and programs for childcare/job training, 6 have jobs and 4 are in college
- 5 still participated in high school social activities, and all 10 are no longer involved with the fathers
- All subjects said they did not regret having their child, stick to school no matter what, take advantage of the programs available to assist you if you are in the same situation in order to succeed
- Research was presented to professor and classmates and received an "A" on our research project
