

Typeset:

Texture always draws the eye and this set of letters caught mine. I always travel with my camera for just such moments. I was in Austin traveling with my family and shopping at various antique stores. I took pictures of keys, dice, books, and other tiny vignettes. Instead of collecting things, I was collecting moments. Each moment connects to a joke or story made and the image itself is striking but every snap has a different meaning for anyone and that is what makes them fun. Others might simply love the texture of this image, but I think of my mom joking that this is how her generation texted. (Location Uncommon Objects Austin Texas)