On a global scale, postpartum hemorrhage (PPH) stands as a primary contributor to maternal mortality and morbidity. The World Health Organization (WHO) estimates that PPH is responsible for around 27% of maternal deaths worldwide. Cathy Harrel, the Course Coordinator for Care of Parents and Newborns, collaborates with other clinical faculty in obstetrics to lead students through a simulation focused on PPH. This simulation adheres to national guidelines and protocols. The simulation lab allows students to learn from high-risk scenarios in a safe environment.
It was another amazing turnout as TAMU-CC was transformed into an Island of blue, green and white lights on Friday, November 17. Our very own Dr. Aziz served as a judge on this year’s Academic Tree competition.

MS II students participated in a full day taking care of a variety of patients on simulation day with Dr. Cynthia DeLanie. The students ended the day with a "code" and the patient survived! Great job students!
New Partnership Helps Train Next-Gen Nurse Practitioners

The TAMU-CC CONHS is partnering with the Jefferson County Health Department to help educate nurse practitioners. Associate Clinical Professor Dr. Elizabeth Loika explains to 12 News Now how the TAMU-CC online Nurse Practitioner Program allows students to complete their course work online while fulfilling the required 600+ clinical hours in their home communities. For in-person, hands-on education, students will join the Jefferson County Public Health Department team in the Mobile Health Unit, and at locations in Beaumont and Port Arthur.
Ashlynn Lobrecht is a Summer '23 grad and works on the labor and delivery floor. “I really liked the sim lab experiences because of the high-fidelity mannequins and the hands-on opportunities the lab provided. I've heard from a lot of my coworkers that they didn’t have the level of sim lab we had with the amount of hands-on things we were able to do and especially not the level of simulations we were able to take part in. I've really carried those skills and simulation experiences into the L&D floor I'm on now. Starting in my new role, I feel like although all of us were scared to start working on the floor, I had a good foundation of knowledge and experience with the education from women's health along with basic skills such as foleys and IVs, which I do almost every shift.”

During their OB course, students engaged in an evolving simulation where they continued the care of a postpartum mother. This involved the step-by-step administration of blood, with a focus on adhering to protocols, providing patient education, and closely monitoring for adverse reactions. These actions are imperative in minimizing risks and ensuring the safety of the patient.
